Good morning, everyone. I would like to take this opportunity to talk to you all about some building work that will be carried out here at Somerford School in the near future. As you all know, the school has received a very kind donation from a previous student, and you have all been voting on how the money should be spent. It has finally been decided to use the money to build an extension to the main school building, which will house a larger library than one we have at present. The plans have been drawn up, and are available for you to see on our website. The library will be twice the size of our present one, and there will also be a large number of computers installed for students to use. Although they will not be able to use the computers for entertainment purposes. The building work for the extension will begin after the end of the school term, but there will probably be a certain amount of disruption when the students return in September.

Classes close to the building work will be transferred to the other side of the school, because of the noise levels. We assure all our students that the work will be finished as quickly and efficiently as possible.
